Northern Saskatchewan Community Directory 1987

Ministers Message

I am pleased to introduce this Community Directory for Northern Saskatchewan prepared by the Northern Affairs Secretariat and the Department of Tourism and Small Business.

The Directory provides a wealth of information on northern communities, the services they provide and the amenities they offer. It is a valuable reference document for anyone interested in the social and municipal infrastructure of northern Saskatchewan.

Sincerely,

Graham Taylor

Hon. Graham Taylor
Minister
Northern Affairs Secretariat

Introduction

The Northern Administration District includes approximately one half of the land mass of Saskatchewan stretching to the 60th parallel of latitude. This is a land of timber, rock, water, and wildlife. Saskatchewan's north differs greatly from the southern part of the province in culture, geography and socio-economic realities.

Much of the north is part of the Canadian Shield, an ancient geological area of exposed bedrock, dense forests, and innumerable lakes. In the northwest, in the Lake Athabasca region, eskers, moraines, great sand plains and other remnants of glacial action are readily visible. Throughout the north, muskeg, marsh, rivers and streams abound, draining eventually into either the Churchill or Mackenzie River systems. Tracts of pine, white and black spruce, Manitoba maple, white elm, birch and aspen form a boreal forest dominating much of the north.

Northern Saskatchewan is a land of spectacular beauty. Its resources and its people combine to provide a potential rarely found. It is an area almost unknown within its own Province, rich in culture and tradition.

The province's first permanent settlement is here - at Cumberland House. Places with such exotic names as Portage La Loche, Lac des Serpents, Ile a la Crosse and Lac La Ronge were well known by the entrepreneurs at Montreal in Lower Canada and in London, England long before our cities such as Prince Albert, Saskatoon, Regina ever came into existence. Now, La Ronge in the south central part of the region is the largest town in northern Saskatchewan and serves as the administrative and commercial 'hub' of the north.

The north is an area of richness. Mineral deposits encompass gold, copper, nickel, uranium, silver, zinc, molybdenum and palladium. Other resources include vast areas of timber, a multitude of lakes with an array of fish species for both the sports angler and the commercial fisherman, as well as fur-bearing and big game animals. Agriculture in the north, as exemplified by wild rice production, is attracting considerable interest. The tourism industry is increasingly providing a source of income for many northerners. The vast waterways of the north, which comprise a significant portion of the country's fresh water, are considered an extremely valuable resource for future development.

Over 25,000 people inhabit the northern half of the Province, spread among some 40 recognized permanent communities.

The purpose of this directory is to give the reader a synopsis of each northern community including information on population, local government structure, services offered and amenities provided.

The information presented here was compiled in the latter part of 1985 and early 1986. Sources included a variety of government agencies and service organizations, and the communities themselves.

Although every effort has been made to check the accuracy of information it is inevitable that some mistakes will occur and that circumstances will change. Readers are encouraged to inform the Northern Affairs Secretariat in writing of information that should be included in future updated publications.
